

Libraries

The J. Giedroyc University Library, which is located within a short distance from the Faculty of History and Sociology, has the largest book collection. The Library subscribes several dozen journals in Polish and foreign languages. The Library has a lending library and a few modern and comfortable reading rooms.

More often than not, students are also using the resources of a dynamically developing Podlaska Digital Library. Moreover, University staff and students can make use of numerous digital collections from electronic databases that have been purchased by the University of Bialystok.

The building in Plac Uniwersytecki houses the Faculty Library, which provides an especially rich offer for those interested in social science, political science, media, history and philosophy.

Two student scientific circles function in the Institute of History and Political Science: Scientific Circle of Historians and Scientific Circle of International Relations.
